

The “Small ball” property in high dimensional measures

Grigoris Paouris *

grigoris@math.tamu.edu

Some of the recent advances in statistical learning theory rely on methods depending on “small ball” probabilities. I will discuss some methods/techniques to prove “small ball probabilities” and I will review some connections with other problems in Asymptotic Geometric Analysis.