

Prediction and identification of secondary structures

Nadia El-Mabrouk

Département d'informatique et de recherche opérationnelle

Université de Montréal

C.P. 6128, succ. Centre-ville

Montréal, Québec

CANADA H3C 3J7

Abstract

We first present algorithmic methods for secondary structures prediction based on free energy minimization techniques. We then focus on algorithmic methods for the identification of conserved RNA structures in a genome. In particular, we present an approximate regular expression search method based on an alignment of non-deterministic automata, and an approximate stem-loop search method based on an alignment of pushdown automata.